Profile

I am a Product Designer in a career transition. Despite having worked mainly as a designer for the last few years, I have never left Web Design aside. In a recent freelance job I had contact with the Angular framework, and then I decided to delve into the technology. I have high proficiency in modern HTML and CSS, but the programming part still has a way to go but I can find my way in most of the challenges I face.

I develop pixel perfect screens, I am a curious fast learner, keen to learn new languages and technologies as needed.

Even though my intention is a career change, I wouldn't mind having some designing tasks assigned to me as long as I'm not designing more than coding.
